ENDEAVORING TO KEEP PA. FUNDS FROM MINUS SIGNS

State Fiscal Officers and Legislators Employed Overtime

SEEK WORKABLE PLAN

Treasury Down to Point Where Pennies Are Being Counted

By Joseph A. Loftus
(U. S. S. Staff Correspondent)

HARRISBURG, Feb. 4.—(INS)—State fiscal officers and legislators with an eye to Pennsylvania's financial welfare employed overtime today to produce a workable plan that will keep Pennsylvania's general fund from going into minus signs this month.

Though nearly five millions are readily available, the treasury is down to the point where it is scraping and counting pennies from every possible source.

Like the individual businessman, the state got its first-of-the-month bills a few days ago. "Payment requested within 30 days" appeared on enough of them to total about $4,600,000 more than the cash on hand.

Default on fixed charges, or something equally as alarming, is not imminent, of course. The fact is, officials still anticipate that million and a half balance when the biennium ends May 31. But some legitimate financial juggling, the balancing act, and possibly even a little ingenuity are necessary for the present to get the state over a slack period. Sufficient money to meet the bills exists in other accounts, but it is bound up with red tape which only more legislation can unravel.

The necessary legislation to help bolster the fund will be introduced Monday night. Anticipating its passage in a hurry, the fiscal departments even then will have to scan all resources in search of another million or so.

When January ended, the General Fund balance was $4,870,000. Fixed expenses which must be paid from the fund this month aggregate $9,494,000. The sum of $3,333,333 is owed by the motor license fund, but the money is only dribbling in and the final payment is not due until next May. The job of getting these dollars post haste is being put up to the Legislature.

The motor fund borrowed $10,000,000 from the general account in 1931. Last June it began to return it at the rate of $833,333 per month and to date has returned two-thirds of the debt, or $6,666,666. The hard-pressed general fund can use the $3,333,333 balance immediately. Hence the legislation to be proposed Monday night to wipe out the installment plan of repayment.

If the legislation is enacted the general fund will be swelled to some eight millions. More than another million will still be necessary then to meet February's fixed charges.

These fixed charges include $5,505,000 for subsidies for fourth class school districts; $2,000,000 for relief allocations under the Talbot Act, and another $2,000,000 for the monthly payroll.

The general fund is in the most impoverished condition in recent years. Relief work is chiefly responsible for this, officials said. The $12,000,000 demanded by law for relief made the inroads. The one per cent general sales tax was enacted to cover the relief disbursement, but collections thus far have been virtually negligible. Payment of the levy by merchants is not mandatory until next month.

Hopes of fiscal officers to meet bills are pinned largely on legislative action to bring immediate repayment from the highway department and then upon early sales tax returns.

LESS THAN 9% PHILA. MURDERERS ESCAPED

Although Homicides in the Quaker City Increased in 1932

12 OF 144 UNSOLVED

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 4.—(INS)—Although homicides increased in this city last year as compared with 1931, records of Detective Captain Harry Heanley, of the murder squad, reveal that less than 9 per cent of the murderers evaded arrest.

Of 144 slayings in Philadelphia in 1932, only 12 remain unsolved. In 1931 there were 121 homicides and no arrests were made in 29 of them. The high mark for homicides in Philadelphia was in 1928, when 172 persons were slain.

The outstanding unsolved murders during the year recently ended were the deaths of Norman Bechtel, Menonite Sunday school teacher, and Frank C. Smythe, a civil engineer. The latter was brutally beaten to death, presumably by a Negro robber. In the Pennsylvania Railroad's new subway.

Heanley described the Bechtel case "as the most baffling murder any police force has had to deal with." Bechtel's body, pierced many times with a knife, was found on the lawn of a closed estate in a secluded section of Chestnut Hill.

Of four gangster murders, none of which has approached solution, the principal was the shooting of Eddie Regan, notorious underworld character, who was "put on the spot" by racketeers in a semi-exclusive apartment house near Broad street and Olney avenue.

Another gang killing that stumped police was the slaying of Joseph Mygoz, better known under the alias "Two-Gun" Murray, an ambidextrous sure-shot with a pistol. Like Regan, Mygoz also met death "on the spot." His executioners "gave him his load of lead" after posing for two days as his new, friendly neighbors in a central city apartment house.

LOOKING TO THE NEXT WAR

Ever since the war debts became an international bone of contention, and that was shortly after the war, people have been asking why their omniscient leaders didn't foresee and forestall this inevitability. The truth of the matter is that there were men in Congress who did foresee today's troubles and who warned the government, but nothing was done to forestall them. That is like government.

The late Senator Cummins, of Iowa, looked into the distant future at the time Congress was authorizing the loans to the Allies and found this picture:

"I fear that in the years to come the fact that the United States has in its possession bonds of these great countries, which when they emerge from the war will be bankrupt, will create an embarrassment from which the men of these times will find it difficult to escape. I think it would cost us more to take those bonds and to hold them against these governments than it would cost us to give the money, with a generous patriotic spirit, to do something which for the time being we are unable to do with our own army and our own navy."

Now it is too late to correct this mistake. The American people are unable to meet the obligations of their own government. They are not convinced that the debtor nations cannot pay. And they have not been shown where these debtors are in default of interest and principal payments on their way borrowings from their own people.

No honorable government would repudiate a foreign loan while making payments on domestic loans, but it is easy for a government to forget honor when it realizes to whom it must go for money with which to fight the next war. A government that would repudiate war loans from its own people would find the borrowings most slim in the next war.

BEST SELLER

The best seller this season is a 400-page book which may not come under the classification of either fiction and yet may come under both. It is a list of Federal jobs which may have new occupants after March 4.

As literature it belongs to neither the fiction nor the non-fiction fields, but as patronage it will be fiction to some and non-fiction to others. Moreover, the President-elect will have to treat many of these jobs as pure fiction if he is to fulfill his economy pledge.

Here was a good thing when it was announced that these lists would be distributed to Democratic patronage dispensers and office-seekers. But there is always a catch to a good thing. They are to be distributed for 40 cents each.

But even at 40 cents the copy this is likely to be the most read piece of Democratic literature this year. In it there are jobs for some and a liberal education in the ancient and modern language of pap for all.

Another factor in the depression is the fellow who hasn't banked anything but pool balls since 1929.

Explanation of progress: The only reason most people speed up is because the car ahead insists on an ambition to pass it.

OUR DAILY FOOD

By COLONEL GOODBODY

MEALS FROM THE COMPANY SHELF

THE emergency or company shelf is a time saving trick in house-keeping that more housewives should know about.

If you once get into the habit of keeping the company shelf well stocked, you will find that it is of inestimable value in handling irregular situations that might otherwise prove embarrassing.

Have you ever been surprised at dinner time by relatives who stopped in for a hospitable chat? The thing to do is not to appear surprised. Just excuse yourself for a moment, take a rapid inventory of your emergency or company shelf, count your guests, and then invite them to stay for dinner.

Of course, just exactly what you have on this emergency shelf depends on personal taste. However, here are two menus that have worked out successfully. Tomato juice cocktails; olives; sweet pickles; deviled crab; buttered peas or asparagus tips; pineapple salad; crackers and cheese; hot biscuits and butter; and coffee.

If you wish to serve some particularly substantial food, a canned ham already cooked, is convenient to have on hand. Here's a good hearty dinner menu which can be prepared in a hurry: cream of celery soup; mustard pickles; grilled ham with spinach; corn fritters; Melba toast and butter; and a compote of fruits; and coffee. The cost of this meal amounts to less than 25 cents per person.

Here's a list of the foods that might very well be kept on that important emergency shelf in the pantry.

Beginning with canned foods, I suggest soups, tomato juice cocktail, evaporated milk, corned beef, corned beef hash, chicken, chop suey, canned mushrooms, beans, fish cakes, and spaghetti in tomato sauce; all kinds of canned vegetables and canned fruits, canned fruit salad, too, and preserves and jams and marmalades; plum pudding, fruit cake, and crackers in tins.

I might add tuna fish, salmon, crabmeat, and shrimp, and cans of food that make up attractive hors d'oeuvres like anchovies, sardines, olives, etc.

And then there are the foods that come in glass jars and bottles—salad dressing, ketchup, chili sauce, and pickles. The food possibilities for the "company" shelf are almost endless, so I might well make this a continued story.

Foreign Stars Nervous as U. S. Eclipse Looms

Uncle Sam's Probe of Illegal Entry and Over-staying Permits in United States May Start Voluntary Exodus of Foreign talent from Film Colony.

Following the arrest of John Farrow, Australian-born scenario writer, by Federal agents on a charge of having gained admission to the United States by posing as a diplomatic representative of Rumania, many other prominent foreigners, big names in the film colony, are feeling nervous lest they come under the probe now being wielded by Assistant Secretary of Labor Murray Garsson. Although the identity of the stars whose standing is being investigated has not been disclosed, it is whispered that several foreign notables intend to leave the country before they are formally invited to do so by Uncle Sam. Lovely Elissa Landi, born in Italy of Austrian parents, left Hollywood recently and took up her abode in Mexico until her permit of residence in the United States was renewed. And Raquel Torres, Mexican film star, is reported as having decided to return to her native land, but has made no formal statement. Lupe Velez, another Mexican actress, famous on stage and screen, is also mentioned as being likely to cross the line until an extension of her permit has been obtained. Maureen O'Sullivan, Irish colleen who made good in Hollywood, recently announced her intention of returning to her native land for good, but whether or not she made her decision on account of the looming probe can only be conjectured. Besides those mentioned, there are many other foreign-born actors and actresses, whose names are household words, to whose standing Uncle Sam will devote his attention in the near future. That is, if they can't take a hint and say "So long, Samuel, we've enjoyed your hospitality!" before Uncle really gets sore.

HOLLYWOOD, ..... illegally or who entered on a limited permit which they have overstayed.

It was revealed that for some time past, several stars have been under investigation, but Assistant Secretary of Labor Murray Garsson, the Government's ace deporter, who commands the probers, declined to disclose their identities. It is believed that Uncle Sam desires to avoid unpleasantness, if possible, so those who have no legal right in the United States will be given the opportunity of withdrawing gracefully, failing which deportation proceedings will be started.

Lupe Velez, the fiery little star from Mexico, was reported some time ago to be under the probe of Garsson and his merrie men from Washington, but it ought to be easy for Miss Velez to fix things up. It is only a short trip across the border where she could obtain a renewal of her permit enabling her to return for a further period.

It is known that Elissa Landi, born in Italy of Austrian parents, avoided official attention recently by going to Mexico and staying there until a new permit to re-enter the United States was provided. One of the actresses in honest doubt as to her standing with the immigration authorities is Raquel Torres, beautiful Mexican. Rumor hath it that Miss Torres will leave the country of her own volition, but she has not made any formal statement of her intentions. Another who, it is said, will leave Hollywood voluntarily is Maureen O'Sullivan, Irish colleen, who recently announced that she was considering the abandonment of her film career and returning to Ireland.

There are many others whose standing is expected to be probed by Garsson and his men, and the moguls fear that if Uncle Sam goes ahead with his intention of deporting all foreign stars it is going to be bad for business. But though Uncle Sam may seem harsh, he is but following the example set by European countries, where foreigners in any line of endeavor are not permitted to engage in work that can be done equally well by a citizen of that country.

Particularly in England is this rule rigidly enforced. There have been occasions when an American actor or actress was imported by a British producer for a special role, and before the importation was allowed into the country, the producer had to prove that the role could not be enacted by a Britisher.

"GIANTS HAVE SHRUNK TO MIDGET SIZE"—PAT

(This is the fourth of a series of 16 articles by Pat Robinson analyzing the major league baseball clubs and outlining their prospects for the year.)

By Pat Robinson
(I. N. S. Sports Writer)
NEW YORK, Feb. 4.—(INS)—The New York Giants have reached the stature of a half grown singer midget. They have been shrinking in size for years and only the strongest sort of glandular treatment by Doctor Bill Terry will make them grow again.

If Doc Terry could find some new blood to inject into the Giants they might yet rise to their former status, but at the moment the patient seems hopeless.

The Giants have more troubles than a hypochondriac ever dreamed of. Their catching is pretty good but the pitching is rather sad, the infield shaky and the outfield just so-so.

Gus Mancuso should do a fair job behind the plate but moving out to the mound we find Carl Hubbell and, well, Carl Hubbell. The slim left hander is the only reliable workman the Giants have.

Bell is just another lad with a glove. Luque is old and will be used only for relief. Fitz slipped badly last year. Parmelee is a wild man. Schumacher is an in and out, Spencer was not so hot with the Pirates. Starr has yet to make good and Shores has still to prove he can come back. If Terry can get anything worth while out of that bunch he's a wonder.

Terry himself is A-1. But can Critz come back at second and will his arm be okay? Will Jackson's knee stay in place? Will Vergez have a good year after falling down last season? These are three real problems and should the answer to any of them be negative, the Giants would be hopeless indeed. The outfield probably will show up better than any other department. George Davis in center, Mel Ott in right and Joe Moore in left form a pretty fair combination with average heft at the plate.

SPORT SHOTS by Maxwell Gordon

WE GOT into a discussion the other day with one of the older residents of the town about the sports of today around Bristol compared with the sport activities in the good old days.

My friend contended that when he was a young man there were a great many more sports events held in this little old town than there is today. . . . He mentioned the great baseball teams that represented Bristol in his youth . . . the championship basketball team that won fame on the courts of the East . . . the harness races that were held around this section . . .

Ice skating on the river and mill pond . . . and the boxing bouts that were held in the Evans hall where Dries furniture store now is located. . . . He contended that Bristol produced better baseball players, basketball players and boxers in those days than the ones of today.

Well, we could not argue much about the ability of the athletes of that time as we were not among those present or were too young to know what it was all about at that time . . . but we did say in defense of the present age that the town has grown bigger and times have changed.

The youth of today has many more things to occupy its attention . . . what with moving pictures, card parties, wrestling and boxing bouts, also the automobile . . . they don't have the time that the youth in the old days had to go in for sports in a serious way.

But they still find time to play football, baseball, basketball and track around this town to supply some pretty good athletes . . . what say you?

The St. Ann's C. C. of Bristol has entered the Greater Northeast basketball tournament at Philadelphia that gets underway Monday evening, Feb. 6th, in Dreamland Hall, Milnor and Orthodox streets, Frankford. . . . Thirty-two of the leading amateur basketball teams in and around the Northeast section will compete in these contests.

Germans Plan To Probe The World Suicide 'Wave'

AUGSBURG, Germany, Feb. 4.—(INS)—Convinced that suicide represents a serious disease of the whole civilized world rather than individual derangements, Dr. Hans Rost, noted German psychologist, has founded an Archive for investigating and combatting the suicide wave. More than 100,000 people end their lives annually all the world over, Dr. Rost said.

The suicide rate is the highest in countries which have been hit hardest by the business depression. In Central Europe, Austria has the highest number of suicides with 3.12 per 10,000 inhabitants a year, closely followed by Hungary with 2.45.

Ernie Looks Ahead

By BURNLEY

--As SCHAAF visions the Future--

FIRST--I'LL KAYO CARNERA--

ERNIE (Slow but Sure) SCHAAF, the strong, silent sailor who quit the Navy to become a heavyweight fighter, thinks he will be champion of all the world by the time next Summer rolls around. Ernest expects to be the man in the opposite corner when Jack Sharkey enters the ring next June to defend his title.

With Baer and Schmeling lined up to box for Dempsey next summer, the only available opponents for Sharkey in the scheduled June bout are SchAAF and Carnera. Ernie expects to first dispose of the Man Mountain and then figures himself a sure thing to capture the crown when he meets his old boss Sharkey in the title bout.

SchAAF had his ups and downs last year. At the start of 1932 he was rated the third best heavyweight in the world, right behind Schmeling and Sharkey. Then, without warning, he began to hit the skids. He barely eked out a win over Jack Cross—a third rate fighter—in a bout at Madison Square Garden. He looked even worse in winning a close decision over the shop-worn Paulino in a 15-round agony bout early last Summer. From these miserable exhibitions it was easy to see that large Ernest was getting nowhere with alarming rapidity. It was noised about that SchAAF was not keeping his nose to the training grindstone. The boys said that he had a swelled head and that he had developed a "society" complex.

It seems that the big, blond letter had been "taken up" by some members of the so-called smart set, and Mr. SchAAF spent his time going to parties and night clubs instead of going to bed early and working out at the gym.

It was the same old story, and it had the inevitable ending. Ernest was matched to fight Max Baer at Chicago, and as he had already licked Baer in a previous clash, SchAAF continued to neglect his training. He had lost interest in the fight racket, and had become absorbed in the business of becoming a social light. He affected an Oxford accent a la Gene Tunney. There came "the big crash." Baer, who doesn't go around with society
